

Presenter Information - 2009

Elanor Starmer is a Researcher and Policy Advocate at Food & Water Watch, a national consumer advocacy organization, where she works on federal food safety policy and other issues. Prior to joining FWW, she helped launch a livestock policy and economics research program at Tufts University's Global Development and Environment Institute. She has an MS in agricultural science and policy from the Tufts School of Nutrition, an MA in development economics from the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, and a BA in public policy from Brown University.